

“Many of our homes are recognizable throughout the prestigious neighborhoods in which we build; these award-winning properties stand the test of time.”

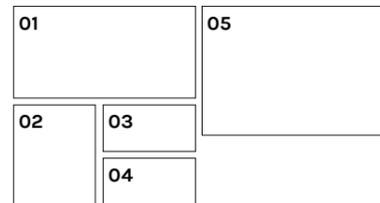

HILL CONSTRUCTION COMPANY

When luxury residential work is at its most complex, Hill Construction continues to add to its hard-earned standing as one of Southern California’s most inventive, dynamic high-end builders.

It’s one thing for a construction company to accept the challenges presented by some of Southern California’s luxury residential puzzles. It’s something else for a business to embrace those complexities. But only a select few firms are at their professional best when faced with inventive, intricate blueprints that leave no room for error. Under the leadership of Ryan Hill—president of the firm launched by his father, Peter, in 1975—the master builders at Hill Construction Company have raised the industry bar time and again with award-winning work in all sizes, shapes and styles. Whether bringing detail-rich splendor to a state-of-the-art contemporary project, creating an eco-sensitive footprint with LEED-certified design or maintaining the integrity of a historic renovation, Hill Construction makes the most demanding high-end projects look effortless. “Our project management model allows us to perform work anywhere in the country and we rise to the occasion when challenged,” says Hill, whose firm has main offices in San Diego and Orange County. “Many projects require difficult installations and building methods that demand research and creativity on our part. For us, that adds an element of excitement. It’s the cohesive and professional way in which we

A board-formed concrete and glass cliffside contemporary home built in La Jolla, California.

PHOTOGRAPH BY AARON LEITZ

CAPTIONS & CREDITS

01.This award-winning project, Marine Lair, was designed to resemble a land ship. 02.The front courtyard of the Gallery House features a sightline to the view beyond through a frameless glass entry. 03.This master bedroom and deck look out to the Pacific through pocketing window walls. 04.Sharp colors, compelling lights and deep shadows make for a serene and stunning pool. 05.This contemporary Texas home, designed by Guy Dreier, is a combination of sculptural shapes and warm organic spaces.

01.Pablo Mason 02.Aaron Leitz 03.Pablo Mason
04.Larry Mack 05.Aaron Leitz

approach these challenges that sets us apart from other builders. We've earned our reputation for collaborative and cutting-edge construction, and practicing the most current technologies, while also honoring traditional and timeless carpentry techniques." While the Hill Construction portfolio includes projects that almost seem CGI-enhanced, seeing is believing when it comes to Marine Lair, a Gold Nugget-winning engineering marvel in La Jolla. Among the countless jaw-dropping elements: a 65,000-pound, infinity-edge rooftop pool supported by wide-flange steel beams and cast-in-place concrete.

UNDERSTANDING THE CLIENT

The firm's peerless team of craftsmen, artisans and project managers offer a complete menu of services from the pre-design stage through post-construction. Along the way, Hill Construction understands that, for its A-list clientele, a house is more than just a structure. "The spaces we create are reflections of the owner and owner's family—a place where memories are made and traditions are honored," Hill says. "The art of building a custom home requires precise planning, systematic processes and seamless coordination. It takes a masterful team of managers, superintendents and behind-the-scenes office personnel to ensure that our client's experience, over a several-month to several-year duration, is an exceptional and enjoyable one. Hill Construction has achieved its accolades and reputation through continual advancement, uncompromised quality, and the highest praise of all—a solid base of repeat clients and referrals."

hillconstructioncompany.com